

IEMA Environmental Sustainability Skills for the Workforce

Introduce your workforce to sustainability on this IEMA Environmental Sustainability Skills for non-environmental specialists training course.

The aim of this 1-day course is to provide an overview of environmental sustainability, equipping attendees with the knowledge and skills to make positive changes towards meeting the needs of current and future stakeholders while improving their environmental performance.

Through a series of practical activities and workshops, this IEMA certified training course will explore the drivers for sustainability in business, implementation frameworks such as the UN Sustainable Development Goals, compliance obligations and sustainability megatrends such as biodiversity and climate change.

The training finishes with a 30-minute multiple-choice assessment and IEMA certificates are provided to all participants following the course.

Excellent tutor who made it very interesting and easy to absorb the information. The pace of the day was good, and I found having the paper booklet really useful to make notes in. What I learnt has given me more information to help me with my role.

Natural Environment Research Council

Being new to environmental matters, I felt this course and its content was ideal. Everything was explained very well by the tutor, I learnt a lot and will be able to apply to where I work. I found the breakout groups very helpful as it gave everyone the opportunity to express their opinions on the topic as well as being able to network.

Evolution Foods Ltd

Very insightful course to give me the right tools to broaden my knowledge.
